WHAT'S THE BIG DEAL?

Kansas Professor's links to Kinsey:
"different strokes for different folks"

Professor Dennis Dailey of the School of Social Welfare at Kansas University is considered the university's "sexpert" according to an article written about him in The Kansan written in the fall of 2000. This article is steeped with Professor Dailey's philosophy concerning the "sexually uptight" world that we live in. According to Professor Dailey people ignore what he calls the "attraction template" because "…what they know spooks them because we live in a sexually uptight world." He confesses in the article that he is often attracted to men as well as women. "There is no such thing as homosexual eroticism or homosexual turn-ones…there is something called turn ones. He contends that students should be open to experiencing their turn ones and should try to work through the societal message that 'sex is bad; sex is dirty; sex is wrong." Dr. Dailey believes that "most students on this campus come from uptight homes, come from families that didn't talk about sex or they didn't get sex education." He further states that most students went to high schools where sex education "was very narrow; reproduction, physiology, anatomy and contraception. They didn't learn about orgasms." The article talks extensively about masturbation and fetishes. He chides women as being too embarrassed to walk into a sex store such as Priscilla's in Lawrence. In an attempt at promoting vibrators as a viable option for women's fulfillment, he says that women who are not comfortable with their sexuality were cheating themselves. The rabbit trail

Dr. Alfred Kinsey's research in 1948 and 1953 on human sexuality gave rise to several precedents. Some of these are:

- All orgasms and outlets are equal; there is no such thing as an abnormality in human sexuality
- The more "outlets" and the earlier the better. These produce sexual health.
- Early masturbation is described as "essential" and is never excessive or pathological
- There are no sexual taboos. Since all so-called taboos are broken anyway they should be considered normal
- Children are sexual from birth. They are not harmed by "consensual" adult-child sex and in fact often benefit from these relationships. In modern jargon these are called interfamilial relationships.
- There is no reason for adult-child sex to be forbidden
- All forms of sodomy are natural and healthy.

Many more conclusions by the Kinsey cadre as a result of their fraudulent and criminal research can be found in Kinsey: Crimes and Consequences by Dr. Judith Reisman. CWA of KS has the Third Edition available for $20.

How did Kinsey go main-stream in conservative America? See our next issue of Family Concerns for the institutions, and the connections to Kinsey, that were established to "certify" the sex experts in the professions that Kinsey identified to spread his theories.

Sexual Attitude Restructuring/Reassessment

In 1971 (see chart, next Family Concerns), the SAR came from the three institutions conferring these degrees which originally stood for Sexual Attitude Restructuring, now known as Sexual Attitude Reassessment. This reassessment technique employs 60-120 hours of viewing erotic films, pornography, and all forms of sexual behavior. The SAR is being offered at the thirty-fifth annual conference of the American Association of Sex Educators, Counselors, and Therapists (AASECT) in which Dr. Dennis Dailey is a featured speaker. The SAR as defined by Wardell Pomeroy: "SAR is designed to de-sensitize." SAR goals are to "facilitate reassessing attitudes regarding various aspects of human sexual behavior, such as self-pleasuring, same-sex interaction, and male/female sexual behavior. They increase knowledge of sexual physiology and response. The psychology of human sexual interaction is discussed in order to increase comfortability and understanding of what it means to be fully human." In Professor Dailey's class, students are subjected to erotic films, pictures and openly frank discussions about all forms of human sexuality. This is designed to take care of what Dr. Dailey perceives as problems with students coming from "uptight" homes. Clearly viewing these films etc. is part of a "desensitization" process that is geared toward changing attitudes.

SIECUS has long promoted Kinsey's agenda; in fact Time Magazine stated that SIECUS is "part of an academic pro-incest lobby conducting a campaign to undermine the taboo against incest and all other sexual inhibitions." [Time, "Attacking the Last Taboo" April 14, 1980] SIECUS has stated "We are roughly in the same position today regarding incest as we were one hundred years ago with respect to our fears of masturbation." SIECUS is the basis for most sex education programs and HIV/AIDS programs in the United States.

What is the bottom line?

Kansas University, funded by the taxpayers of Kansas, has conducted a "thorough investigation" of Dr. Dennis Dailey's class and has found no problems with his methods, etc. Obviously Dr. Dailey's twenty years of indoctrination has had a profound effect on the university, the culture and on Kansans, judging from the irate responses both from KU's faculty and supporters of the university.
