

ObamaCare Quashes Religious Liberty Talking Points

- The Affordable Care Act (ObamaCare) violates your right to religious liberty.
- It forces Americans to buy health insurance plans that include contraception and abortion coverage.
- It also forces businesses to provide health insurance plans that include contraception and abortion coverage.
- Numerous groups, many of the Christian, have been fighting ObamaCare's religious freedom violations, since its inception.
- These cases have NOT been heard at the Supreme Court yet.
- The so-called religious exemption they have provided covers only "churches and other houses of worship."
- Government decides which entity is religious enough to deserve a religious exemption.
- According to government, Christian groups like Concerned Women for America (CWA), religious hospitals or orphanages, or religious orders are NOT religious enough.
- For example, the nuns at Little Sisters of the Poor who, because of their deep faith, give their whole life, literally, to serving the elderly, are NOT religious enough to receive an exemption under ObamaCare.
- Simply put, ObamaCare places reproductive "rights" above religious liberty.
