The New Abortion Ban

[CWA President, Wendy Wright]

I'm Wendy Wright, President of Concerned Women for America.

Have you ever seen a premature baby?

They're so fragile, and yet one of the best ways to help them thrive is to gently touch, caress, and hold them.

No one questions whether these babies can feel; in fact, we're extra cautious because their little bodies are super sensitive.

Nebraska took this obvious fact and applied it to abortion.

The state passed a ban on abortions after twenty weeks because medical evidence – and common sense – shows that babies can feel pain.

Abortion groups are furious and vow to fight it.

This fetal pain law may be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

When the Court upheld the Partial-Birth Abortion Ban, it recognized that abortion can cause traumatic pain to the mother.

It's time for the Court to recognize abortion also inflicts pain on the baby.
