

To whom it may concern,

Walmart's decision to weigh into a political debate, expanding abortion coverage for its employees and offering to pay for travel for them to obtain an abortion, is a slap in the face to millions of Americans like myself who have looked to Walmart for our shopping needs due to your long-standing pro-family reputation.

Walmart has decided to pay for the termination of unborn children with little to no limits. The value of a life is not dependent on circumstance. It also does not escape our attention that supporting such a heinous policy conveniently keeps women at their Walmart jobs rather than at home caring for themselves and their babies.

Not only is your pro-abortion policy reprehensible, but your touting of a small increase in adoption benefits to atone for what you know to be an immoral, anti-woman policy is offensive.

When more than 70% of the American people support restrictions on abortion, why would Walmart, of all companies, disregard their views in favor of abortion advocates?

We urge you to rethink your decision to fund abortions. Until you do, we will take our business elsewhere.

Thank you,
